The Chicago Tribune, in its issue of the 8th inst., has the following:

"Mr. J. Sheridan Shindler, the author of 'Vivian the Page,' and the editor of 'Vivian's Budget,' has written a book which will be published in a few days, entitled 'Vivian's Vade Mecum.' It will be a complete guide to the etiquette of the Vivian Society, and will contain full directions for the proper manner of entering a room, of leaving it, of bowing to a lady, of saluting a gentleman, of walking in the street, of dancing in the parlor, of sitting at the table, of eating, drinking, and conversing. Mr. Shindler has been a long time at work upon this book, and has had many difficulties to contend with. Many of the Vivians have been so rude as to refuse to answer his letters of inquiry, and he has had to rely upon his own observation for the greater part of his information. He has, however, been very successful, and the book will be found to be a complete manual of Vivian etiquette. It will be published in a few days, and will be sold at the low price of 50 cents per copy. Mr. Shindler has also in press a work entitled 'Vivian's Vade Mecum for Children,' which will be published in a few weeks. It
